

MATCH ABANDONMENTS

Any decision to abandon a match should be taken solely by the Match Referee, after consultation with both team managers, where this is appropriate.

IFAB Laws of the Game 2022-23 state under Law 5:

3. Powers and duties

The referee:

enforces the Laws of the Game controls the match in cooperation with the other match officials acts as timekeeper, keeps a record of the match and provides the appropriate authorities with a match report, including information on disciplinary action and any other incidents that occurred before, during or after the match

supervises and/or indicates the restart of play

If in the opinion of the Match Referee the matter cannot be dealt with satisfactorily and the welfare of any participants remains at risk, in terms of the threat of continued abuse or violence, they should consider abandoning the match.

If anyone else (for example a coach or club official or player) takes this decision for whatever reasons, then a charge can be brought against them by the relevant County FA. While their reasons for choosing to abandon a match may be considered in mitigation (and depending on the circumstance of the incident this might lead the disciplinary commission to apply a lesser sanction), they won't prevent a charge being issued.

Whilst each case will be dealt with on its own merits, the sanction guidelines for the relevant FA Rules include a fine of up to £300

You should also be aware that in cases where a match has been abandoned due to the conduct of one or both teams, League rules mean the fixture will not be replayed and depending on the circumstances neither side may be awarded the points.

As such, where any party feels a situation is developing where it may be necessary to abandon a match due to the conduct of participants, it is vital that all concerned work with the match official to resolve the situation, rather than making a decision in isolation.
