INSPIRING POSITIVE CHANGE

Football has the power to change lives for the better. It can contribute to physical and mental wellbeing, it can provide opportunities to compete and collaborate with others and it can help to shape the place of girls and women in wider society.

Our strategy is based on understanding an individual's motivation to play - for learning, for recreation, for competition and for excellence. We want to ensure there is access and opportunity for every girl and woman to play, coach, spectate, officiate, manage or administer if they so wish and the game to be truly representative of our society across all protected characteristics¹ and social backgrounds.

We have built our long-term strategy around the following:

1. Giving every girl the earliest opportunity to have a fun, enjoyable introduction to the game in school and club.
2. Providing a well-signposted, inclusive and accessible club player pathway that supports the talented girls and young women who aspire to play in The FA Women's National League, The FA Women's Championship and the Barclays FA Women's Super League.
3. Being at the global forefront of women's professional sport and developing the best women sports leagues and competitions in the world.

4. Providing a 'Blueprint for Success' for our England players from under-14s through to the senior team so we consistently achieve international success in major senior tournaments.
5. Ensuring we have high standards of coaching practice throughout the women's game underpinned by a thirst for ongoing learning, critical thinking and knowledge sharing.
6. Providing football for all those who want to play for fun and recreation by developing local leaders from every community to motivate and organise opportunities to play for fitness and friendship.
7. Developing a diverse, well supported and highly skilled workforce including coaches, referees, sports development officers and administrators at every level of the game.
8. Growing our fanbase and extending engagement in our domestic and international competitions to build profile, drive brand value and ensure long-term financial sustainability.

Finally, we want to harness the inspirational power of a home UEFA Women's EURO Championships in 2022 as a catalyst for growth in every area.

To achieve all this, we will work in partnership with other football stakeholders and our growing range of commercial partners and broadcasters to inspire positive change for girls and women through football.

Our 2024 goal:

Every primary school-aged girl to have equal access to football in school and in clubs

Giving girls the enthusiasm to be active and move with confidence is a vital building block in life's journey.

We want to help girls develop holistically and fall in love with our game at a young age. Providing a positive first experience for all is essential.

At a practical level, this means embedding football for girls in schools, as part of the PE curriculum and in after-school sessions.

As well as introducing a healthy lifestyle at an early age through football, we also want to create an appetite and an environment in which young girls carry on playing football into and through their teenage years.

Measures of success

By 2024 we want to see:

- Equal football access for all girls at 90% of schools (primary/secondary), with delivery in PE lessons, lunchtimes and after school;
- 90% of schools (primary/secondary) in England to be part of The FA Girls' Football School Partnerships network, supported by Barclays;
- Outside schools every girl to have a Wildcats¹ session within easy traveling distance of their home;
- The majority of grassroots clubs nationally to have an offering for girls;
- Ensure all under-7 to under-12 girls have easy access to an inclusive club with an appropriate competitive pathway within easy access from home;
- Provision for disabled girls to be involved in everything we do, whether in-school or in recreational activities, such as Wildcats;
- Full compliance with FA safeguarding policy, procedures and safer working practice.

¹ Wildcats = a programme for girls aged 5-11 to try football for the first time and providing regular opportunities to play. Once a week, either after-school or at weekends. Open to everyone.

How we'll achieve our 2024 goal

Clearly, working in close collaboration with primary schools is vital. We'll provide training for teachers to run football sessions – either in-curriculum or after school – backed by physical resources and content. Potentially, we'll also provide funding where it's most needed.

Outside school, we'll work with grassroots clubs and community football providers, such as local authorities and professional clubs' community organisations.

With clubs and community providers, we'll work in partnership to embed a Wildcats' programme wherever practical – and provide training for those running Wildcats' sessions through our entry-level FA Playmaker supported by BT² course. We'll back this up with funding where necessary and technology provision, such as booking systems.

All the above will be delivered via our County FA network, with advice and resources made available across the grassroots landscape to create a national roster of female-friendly clubs.

And of course, we'll advise on safer working practice in every football setting.

The ultimate aim is for schools, clubs and community providers to be empowered to run engaging, fun and safe football sessions that link back to our main ambition in this age group: to provide every young girl with a great physical foundation for life.

Key to all the above will be strong campaigns, to ensure girls – and their parents/carers – realise that getting into football is easy, and its benefits are profound. Our messaging and signposting will be motivational, persuasive and easy to follow.

² FA Playmaker supported by BT = the entry-level course from FA Education that introduces everyone to the basics of making football happen.

DEVELOPMENT PARTICIPATION

Age group
11-14

Our 2024 goal:

Every girl to have equal access to participate, compete and excel in the game

It is well known that secondary school-age girls experience more barriers to football participation than boys, particularly in school curriculum time.

More grassroots clubs are developing girls' youth teams, but substantial work is needed to give girls the same level of opportunities as boys to participate in club football.

This is a critical age, when many girls experience declining body confidence and negative attitudes towards sport. So, removing barriers and making football more relevant to young girls' lives is essential.

Football can play a really important role in developing vital life skills such as resilience and self-confidence, as well as improving emotional and physical fitness during this key life phase.

Measures of success

By 2024 we want to see:

- Equal football access for girls at in 90% of schools (primary/secondary), with 75% delivering football in PE lessons and after school;
- 90% of schools (primary/secondary) in England to be part of The FA Girls' Football School Partnerships network, supported by Barclays;
- A teenage-girl-specific national football programme rolled out across England;
- Over 1,000 clubs across England providing a complete pathway¹ for girls;
- The delivery of the female-friendly club training programme across the country;
- A female-specific offer within 75% of clubs with youth sections nationally;
- Ensure all under-12 to under-16 girls have easy access to an inclusive club with a suitable competitive pathway within easy access from home;
- Provision for disabled teenage girls to be involved in everything we do, whether in-school or in FA initiatives;
- Full compliance with FA safeguarding policy, procedures and safer working practice.

¹ Complete pathway = mirroring the provision that boys enjoy. A club will provide a minimum of two-year age bands for girls (under-8, under-10, under-12, under-14, under-16 OR under-7, under-9, under-11, under-13, under-15, under-17), but with an aspiration of age groups for every year.

How we'll achieve our 2024 goal

In parallel with the 'Early Participation' phase, working with schools, other education providers and football clubs is fundamental.

We'll support those asked to teach football with specialist training, complemented by physical resources and content. We'll also provide leadership training for girls at this important life stage.

Away from schools, we'll roll out teenage-specific football programmes to grassroots clubs and other football providers in the community. Our ambition is that all girls have access to an inclusive club with a suitable competitive pathway, mirroring the provision that boys enjoy today.

Encouraging as many people as possible to take our new FA Playmaker supported by BT course will be key to all our activity. It teaches the basics of running fun and safe football sessions and if individuals want to progress, it can lead to football coaching qualifications.

Particularly with this transformative age group, we want to harness football's power to build and maintain self-esteem, alongside keeping fit, making friends and having fun. These are ends in themselves, but we will also have a defined pathway in place to mitigate girls dropping out of football in their teenage years through lack of opportunity to keep playing.

In parallel with the 5-11 age group, there will be campaigns and initiatives to encourage teenage girls to make football their long-term sporting and lifestyle choice. Communicating with this age group will be supported by senior England and club players, influencers and role models who will showcase the game and help inspire confidence in the future.

We're committed to football playing its part in this country's young women becoming physically and emotionally healthier, more resilient and self-confident.

FOOTBALL FOR ALL

Age group

Our 2024 goal:

A motivated, diverse range of local leaders organising football for their communities

There is much to do to make football genuinely 'For All'. The level of engagement with females from diverse communities is not where it should be. We believe the route to change this is to identify, develop and support local leadership that is grounded in the lived experience of every girl to help us facilitate football for everyone.

We also want to actively recruit and train more leaders to help us increase the opportunities for disabled females to take part in our Wildcats programme and play football in schools, community organisations and clubs.

The FIFA Women's World Cup in 2019 inspired a nation and demonstrated massive growth potential in adult female recreational football, with thousands of older women from our 'missed generation' expressing an interest in the game. The new entry-level FA Playmaker supported by BT course presents a fabulous opportunity to recruit the next generation of football leaders to support this growth.

We also have a real opportunity to combat societal issues through football. For example, initial pilots of football-based activities with refugee/asylum-seeking women and female prisoners are having positive results. Working with relevant partners, we also plan to educate leaders to run these and other such programmes where most needed.

Measures of success

By 2024 we want to see:

- Leadership programmes for young women from every background, with a marked increase in ethnically diverse women being introduced to our game;
- A diverse network of FA Playmakers to bring football to every community group;
- More coaches completing the free to access FA Education modules introducing disability football, to increase the awareness, confidence and skills required to engage females with health conditions or impairments;
- All County FAs offering FA-developed 'fun' football opportunities so adult women can experience the game recreationally and/or competitively, e.g. Walking Football, Soccercise and Small-Sided;
- Opportunities for under-represented female groups to engage through a series of specific football-based interventions;
- Full compliance with FA safeguarding policy, procedures and safer working practice in every activity we undertake.

An Advisory Group has been started to guide our engagement with Asian women.

How we'll achieve our 2024 goal

Breaking the real or perceived gender barrier to football is a constant focus. However, beyond this, we will reach out to specific groups or communities, and identify and train influential football leaders.

That's why we'll be working with a range of specialist community groups in strategic locations. We'll offer the potential leaders we identify various development opportunities, including leadership camps, online training and courses, such as The FA Playmaker supported by BT. Resources and content will be provided, as well as guidance on safeguarding procedures and safer working practice in every setting.

We will also draw upon the insight and guidance of our many national inclusion advisory groups, such as The FA Asian Women in Football Advisory Group and The FA Refugees and Asylum-Seekers in Football Network.

In parallel, we will analyse the level of diversity across the women's game so we can create bespoke, targeted interventions.

In addition, we'll work with grassroots clubs and community football providers to ensure they are truly inclusive. Apart from The FA's own experience in this area, we will facilitate knowledge-sharing across the football network.

Schools, Further Education and Higher Education providers will also be key partners in our work to ensure every woman and girl in England has access to our national sport and contribute towards our relatable leaders of tomorrow.

Campaigns with clear signposting will welcome those new to the game, from every community. We will harness the profile and power of the England squads in activity aimed at driving engagement with specific under-represented community groups. Working with external partners, we will also run programmes to encourage once-active participants to return to the game.

“

We want to change the lives of women and girls through football, delivering sustainable social impact and helping create more inclusive communities across the country. We will show over the next four years that football is 'For All' girls and women.

CLUB PLAYER PATHWAY

Age group

AS APPROPRIATE TO THE PLAYER

Our 2024 goal:

An effective high-performance, inclusive player-centred pathway

The continued growth of the women's domestic and international game will be driven by the strength of the youth development pathways which sit beneath it. The players involved in that pathway will not all reach the summit and we need to support and assist them to secure their futures. Those that do reach the summit will also need support.

We know players are primarily developed at clubs so we aim to invest in and build an inclusive and principle-driven club player pathway.

The club player pathway will support the recruitment, development and transition of players while considering player needs from tactical, technical, psychological, physiological, social and dual-career¹ perspectives, starting them on this journey when it's appropriate for the player.

As a result, the aim is that every player is better prepared for the needs of international and domestic club football – and in their wider lives, whatever their aspirations. We aim to develop great people. Because great people do great things.

¹ Dual-career = an environment which ensures academic learning continues alongside football development, so non-football career paths are an option a) should a professional football career not transpire, or b) once professional playing days are over.

Measures of success

By 2024 we want to see:

- Our vision to be implemented through our club structure and FA-approved player pathway, which:
 - Generates more England-qualified players in first-team starting line-ups;
 - Includes authentic relationships with FE and HE providers, ensuring a dual-career environment for players across all Tier 1 and 2 clubs²;
 - Meets or exceeds a set of high-performance standards agreed with the clubs.
- Club player pathways featuring:
 - Players engaging at the entry point, through the community clubs;
 - More players from ethnically diverse backgrounds and socio-economically-deprived areas accessing the player pathways;
 - More coaches and club support staff from ethnically diverse backgrounds.
- A diverse and flexible competition framework with development opportunities for players and coaches throughout the framework;
- Every applicable club to have its own bespoke long-term player development plan and framework based on the 'Blueprint for Success'³;
- Research, insight and benchmarking being utilised to support club environments to drive and impact performance;
- Safeguarding policy, procedures and safer working practice embedded across all club activity.

² Tiers 1 and 2 = Barclays FA Women's Super League (Tier 1) and FA Women's Championship (Tier 2).

³ Blueprint for Success = A defined curriculum of playing, coaching and operating philosophy at women's national team level which can be configured the domestic game, allowing players to move seamlessly through the pathway.

How we'll achieve our 2024 goal

Our 2024 goal will only be achieved by working seamlessly and supportively with clubs. Creating club-specific inclusive and accessible player pathways will involve a profound level of understanding of the challenges and opportunities each club faces.

For example, we will help clubs analyse the demographics of the area they serve. The gathering and interpretation of socio-economic, ethnicity and age data will be vital if the final player pathway is to really deliver for the community. We will then help each club to create its own unique 'Blueprint for Success'.

But at the heart of every pathway must be the player. At whatever point a player accesses a club pathway, we will work with clubs to support their players every step of the way, whether those steps lead to a career in the professional game, or a working life outside it.

A single competition would require a one size fits all approach. We aim to develop a framework which will empower clubs to develop a range of opportunities that deliver multiple outcomes which will allow them to control, raise and lower the challenge accordingly to meet the needs of their players at a given time.

In time the framework will support clubs in producing and delivering more highly skilled players who can fulfil their full potential to play in The Barclays FA WSL and FA Championship.

We will also encourage players to take coaching and refereeing qualifications to add to their skills and stay in the game. We will support clubs in developing their safeguards and safer working practice to support environments that compliment player wellbeing

We want to help young women be the best they can be for the rest of their lives.

Communicating the player pathway is fundamental to its success. We will use the most impactful channels to tell the stories of individuals at key pathway points, from the playground to the professional game.

“

Our priority is to prepare the future player to meet the needs of international and club football.

Our 2024 goal:

The best professional women's sports leagues and competitions in the world

The advent of high-quality competitive women's football in England – and its increasing visibility – has challenged outmoded perceptions about women's role in sport and society.

We want to provide girls with the aspiration of becoming a professional footballer, an elite manager, a coach or a referee. We then want to turn these aspirations into a new generation of strong, healthy and active young women who can help drive our professional game forward.

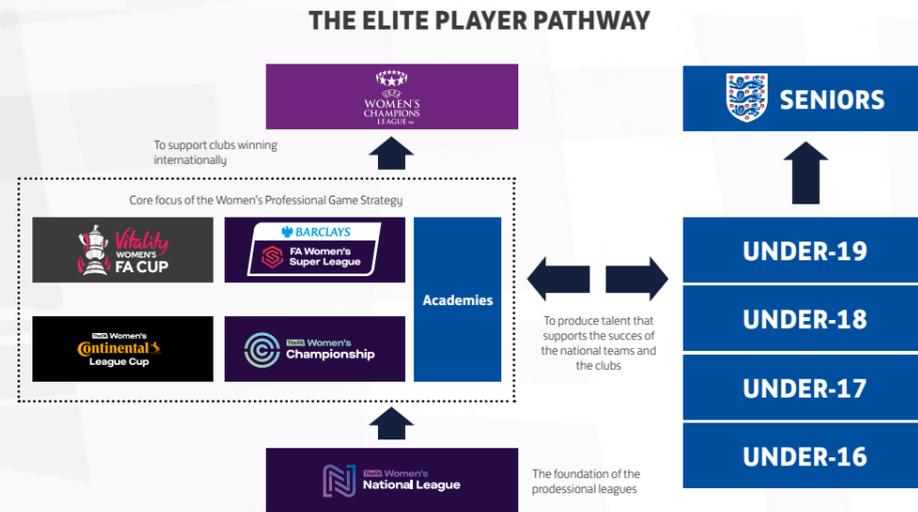

Now the challenge is to continue to increase the quality of every aspect of the current women's professional game. To do so, we have established a new FA Board devoted to the Barclays FA Women's Super League and FA Women's Championship and developed a new strategy in collaboration with the clubs.

With this board steering the way we will look to attract and develop world class players; increase audiences, attendances and followers and grow commercial revenue to develop the best professional women's sports leagues and competitions in the world.

Measures of success

By 2024 we want to see:

- Clubs – and England – winning major international trophies;
- Increased average attendances at domestic league and cup matches;
- Higher viewing figures domestically;
- Increased broadcast reach of the domestic competition;
- New and bigger commercial partnerships across all competitions;
- A world-class workforce to meet the needs of the professional women's game;
- Improved stadiums and training facilities;
- The best levels of player welfare and wellbeing in a women's sports league in the world.

How we'll achieve our 2024 goal

We will simultaneously work on three key elements to turn our goal into reality: attract and develop world-class players, maximise and engage audiences through targeted marketing and communications campaigns and grow commercial revenue.

The latter in particular will drive the long-term sustainability of the professional game. And in everything we do, we will lead the game collaboratively to ensure we're all on the same journey, heading to the same destination.

We will actively showcase our ethnically diverse heroines of the league to demonstrate the power role models will have in driving more diversity to our league in the future.

Simultaneously, we will continue to develop the existing 'product' we offer – the quality of football people see on the pitch. That means working with clubs to recruit and develop the most talented players to enhance the competitive level of matches. Off the pitch we will be working hard to upgrade facilities for players and fans.

We want to make the Barclays FA WSL one of the most sought-after women's sports properties globally and become the most-followed women's football league. Alongside this, we will make The FA Women's Championship a league of genuine competitive quality, to underpin and feed the top flight.

In parallel, we will continue to build the profile of the Vitality Women's FA Cup, growing audiences and attendances throughout the competition and ensuring the Final becomes one of the biggest events in the sporting calendar with great TV audiences and a sell-out Wembley Stadium.

Working with broadcast and commercial partners, we will build the profile of domestic competitions, hit new attendance records and engage a new generation of young girls and boys to watch their favourite players and teams at their home grounds.

We have a powerful collective ambition to be at the global forefront of women's professional sport and build the best women's football leagues and competitions in the world.

Our 2024 goal:

Win a major tournament

International football is the biggest development driver for the women's game.

Therefore, UEFA Women's Euro Championship or FIFA Women's World Cup success will inspire the nation and positively change the lives of girls and women in England.

Alongside this, our England players must be positive role models for young girls to admire and aspire to become, believing anything is possible.

All our work with the national teams is underpinned by the new England women's 'Blueprint for Success'¹. This has player development at its heart and will create an environment for all England-qualified talent to pursue and fulfil their dreams.

Measures of success

By 2024 we want to see:

- Tournament performance plans in place before every major international tournament in every age group. All geared to winning trophies;
- A long-term player development plan for all players so they're tournament-ready;
- Selection panels in place for all England teams;
- The England 'Blueprint for Success' delivered and fully operational;
- An England-qualified policy in place with the Barclays FA WSL and FA Women's Championship so the best quality and quantity of players are available for the national teams;
- A process for securing dual-nationality eligibility of players;
- Visibility and profile to drive sell-out attendances at home England matches;
- High standards of coaching practice throughout the Lioness pathway, underpinned by a thirst for ongoing learning, critical thinking and knowledge-sharing.;
- Full compliance with FIFA, UEFA and FA tournament safeguarding policies, procedures and safer working practice.

How we'll achieve our 2024 goal

Having a development model in place across the game – the 'Blueprint for Success' – is vital to the England Women's team reaching the apex of the game. The next summits are winning the England-staged UEFA Women's EURO Championships 2022 or the FIFA Women's World Cup 2023, to be held in Australia and New Zealand.

We have already established the 'England DNA', which guides every aspect of how England teams are coached and play, as well as setting out the principles and standards we expect of our international players.

In addition, we will also have tournament-specific performance plans for every age group, all geared to trophy wins.

Whilst our focus is on high standards and success, our philosophy and infrastructure will champion player welfare and wellbeing.

However, having systems and plans in place is not enough. They will need constant fine-tuning by the right people to give ourselves the best-possible shot at the game's biggest prize.

In the meantime, on-pitch success will lead to a growth in credibility and visibility, helping drive commercial value. This will enable further investment towards increasing involvement in football, whether as player, coach, referee, fan or volunteer. And all the time we will continue to build the England brand, harnessing the positive power of our top international players as real role models to connect with the grassroots game and inspire the next generation.

Alongside all the above, The FA will continue to support the development of opportunities for female para-footballers in line with the International Federations. Over the next four years we will:

- Support the Deaf England Women's squad to attend the 2021 World Deaf Championship and the Great Britain squad at the 2022 Deaflympics;
- Host the 2021 Women's Blind workshop via The FA Para Football Unit, supported by IBSA (International Blind Sports Federation) and UEFA;
- Work with British Blind Sport to support its bid to host the 2023 IBSA Women's Blind World Football Championships.

“

We ask ourselves the question, what can we do better and differently to make winning inevitable? Talent wins games, but teamwork and intelligence wins trophies. We want to inspire the nation through world-class football.

Our 2024 goal:

Exceptional coaches at every level of the game who are representative of our society

For us to realise our ambitions for player participation and quality in the women's game, we are committed to developing coaches capable of operating at the highest standards throughout the player pathway outlined on pages 24-27 inclusive.

These coaches will represent all spheres of society and contribute to a culture that values everyone and actively encourages a greater number of female coaches to be part of our future. These coaches will become the role models for players transitioning into coaching careers in the years to come.

We will strive to equip every coach with the ability to deliver personalised, high-quality experiences. This will ensure our female players thrive, fulfil their potential and stay in the game for as long as possible.

Measures of success

By 2024 we want to see:

- High standards of coaching practice throughout the women's game underpinned by a thirst for ongoing learning, critical thinking and knowledge sharing;
- More coaches in the women and girls' game, with a greater proportion being female and from ethnically diverse backgrounds;
- An established coaching pathway throughout the female game, with personalised, connected learning experiences and CPD opportunities;
- A suite of coaching resources contextualised for the female game;
- A rigorous talent ID process to identify, and subsequently support our most talented coaches with bespoke individual development plans, facilitating and embedding succession planning in the coaching pathway;
- A high-performance programme for coaches in or aspiring to work at the game's highest levels, with 14 to 18 coaches on the programme each season, of which 75% are female;
- A high-performing, quality coach development workforce, representative of society, to support coaches in the female game;
- More women of all ages and backgrounds consistently and continuously engaging in development and taking entry-level FA coaching qualifications to sustain the grassroots game;
- More coaches completing the free to access FA Education modules introducing disability football, to increase the awareness, confidence and skills required to safeguard and engage females with health conditions or impairments. Using these initial modules to promote continuous engagement in this area, as we create new resources and experiences to support coaches.

How we'll achieve our 2024 goal

To ensure the women's and girls' game flourishes at every level, we will generate a plentiful cohort of coaches across three distinct domains:

- Grassroots coaches: empowered to run introductory and recreational programmes in youth and adult grassroots clubs.
- Development coaches: delivering great experiences to players, who really understand everything it takes to develop well-rounded talented footballers with aspirations to play professionally.
- High-performance coaches: working at the highest levels of the club and international game. Such coaches will have genuine leadership and management skills and understand what it takes to hone a talented player into one who can have a career in the professional game and represent the Lionesses.

Irrespective of the domain, the common thread will be bespoke, high-quality coach development underpinned by ongoing support. This means every coach will be offered formal learning opportunities such as workshops and CPD (online and face-to-face) specific to female football. For coaches at higher levels, we will provide 1:1 support and mentoring, alongside opportunities to share knowledge and enhance their own expertise.

We will raise the profile of female coaches across all levels, championing case studies and encouraging more women from diverse communities to take up coaching.

Ultimately, we want to ensure everyone has a positive football experience, whether they play or coach the game recreationally, in a grassroots club, player pathway club or at professional/international level.

We will empower the female football coaching workforce. Not only to normalise women in football coaching, but also to provide aspirational, relatable and credible female role models for future generations.

Our 2024 goal:

Every female referee afforded high-quality bespoke learning and development opportunities from grassroots through to the elite game

Alongside the development of players and coaches, we are also committed to creating a new generation of female referees and referees specialising in the women's game.

As women's domestic football in England goes from strength to strength, the visibility and profile continues to grow. As a result, there is an increasing drive towards the professionalism of our match officials.

We are committed to the continued professional development of our top female referees and assistant referees through the creation of our CORE (Centre of Refereeing Excellence) women's programme and remain focused on creating a new generation of female officials.

The future generation will not only serve both the women's and men's game at every level but provide a talent pool that will progress throughout the game.

2019 saw the launch of a pathway for referees within the women's game that aligns with the traditional refereeing pathway through the men's game. Now is the time to create a solid professional development structure that complements both pathways at every level of the game and is accessible for all, reflecting our society across all protected characteristics and social backgrounds.

Inspired by existing referee role models, we will create a generation of ambitious, empowered female referees with the confidence to showcase their skills whether at grassroots, semi-professional, professional or international levels.

Measures of success

By 2024 we want to see:

- In the professional game:
 - English officials within the elite category on the international list of women referees;
 - A pool of committed match officials delivering world-class performances within the Barclays FA WSL;
 - A marked increase in club satisfaction in both the Barclays FA WSL and FA Women's Championship;
 - 100% of referees operating in The FA Women's National League (Tier 3) and The FA Women's Championship (Tier 2) to have bespoke personal development opportunities.
- In the grassroots game:
 - A female referee workforce that represents our society in social background and all protected characteristics;
 - 50% of trainee referees transitioning into an active referee role within the game;
 - Distance-learning available for every female grassroots referee;
 - Regular regional learning opportunities for ambitious grassroots female referees;
 - A talent ID system to ensure female referees with potential have the support and opportunity to progress to the higher levels of the men's and women's games.
- In the existing referee developer workforce:
 - A referee developer workforce that represents our society in gender, social background and all protected characteristics;
 - A committed workforce with the skills, knowledge and expertise to develop female referees for the women's game.

How we'll achieve our 2024 goal

We will establish a sustainable recruitment strategy embedded into local communities, clubs and higher/further education establishments. We will actively market our referees' course highlighting the opportunities it provides in developing people, developing players and providing an alternative career path within the game. We will provide guidance and support to create safe environments for young female match officials to develop their confidence and skills.

We will raise the profile of women's refereeing using our annual flagship development event and social media platforms to celebrate the achievements and successes of our female match officials, using the passion of our role models to inspire the next generation.

We will create regional contact centres that will offer a local hub of support for female grassroots match officials. Referees will become part of a community, driven by peer learning and support whilst receiving regular training opportunities and mentor support.

Through the use of The FA online learning platform we will provide tailored remote learning, development and education accessible to all grassroots referees.

We will invest in the professional development of our international female match officials. Working in collaboration with our major stakeholders, we will support their development to provide them with the best opportunities to excel on the international stage.

We will use the findings of our world-class evaluation system to enhance the technical and physical depth and frequency of training to our female match officials operating in the Barclays FA WSL and FA Women's Championship. We will establish a women's professional game refereeing review group, with our major stakeholders to ensure a collaborative approach in raising standards.

Development and education will be created and delivered to all our current and future developer workforce to ensure they are equipped with the knowledge, skillset and confidence to develop our female match officials. They will be afforded opportunities to use their expertise at the various development programmes throughout women's refereeing.

We aim to set a new world standard in the quality of women's referee development – at every level of the game.

Jo Stimpson,
FA Women's Refereeing Manager

SHINING
A LIGHT

SHINING A LIGHT

The positive power and growth of women's football in England should not be our game's best-kept secret.

If we are to achieve our goals, we have to shine a light on women's and girls' football. That means explaining succinctly to every woman and girl, through engaging marketing and communications campaigns, that the game is open to them and we now have the framework to welcome them.

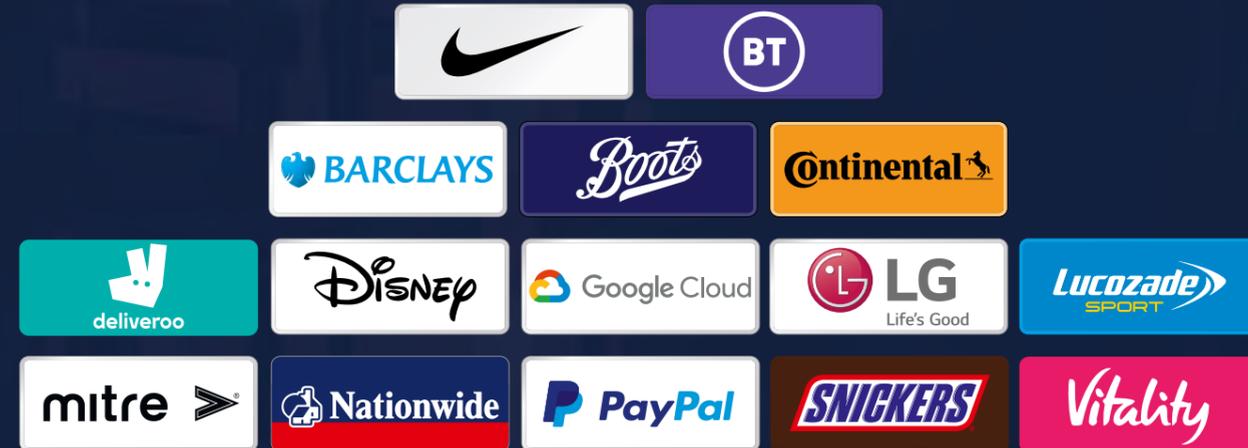

With the support of our domestic and international stars, the media, broadcasters and our commercial partners, we will inspire, motivate and change perceptions across every level and facet of the women's game.

A new generation of inspirational role models will emerge. The powerful stories of players, coaches, referees and volunteers will be told and inspire others to follow in their footsteps.

UEFA EURO 2022 and FIFA Women's World Cup 2023 will be key moments in time when the eyes of the nation will be on the sport. We'll be ready and waiting to leverage their power and reach to deliver transformational change.

Our goal is for women's and girls' football to be embraced as an integral part of this country's football fabric – whether it's played, led, watched or followed. In time, gender should be irrelevant. It's all football.

Commercial partners:

Broadcast partners

In addition, the reach and popularity of the game is boosted by our valued broadcast partners:

National delivery partners

The game is also flourishing thanks to several national delivery partners, without whom we could not implement various development programmes:

Non-commercial partners

Furthermore, the game's infrastructure is part-funded by dedicated non-commercial partners:
