TIME TO TALK DAY 2019 TAKES PLACE ON THURSDAY 7 FEBRUARY

Tackle mental health stigma this Time to Talk Day.

With one in four of us experiencing a mental health problem in any given year, there has never been a better time for your sports club to get involved.

We're asking you to get your athletes, coaches, fans and local community talking about mental health on Time to Talk Day. This year the focus is on finding the right ingredients for a mental health conversation. Whether that's your trainers and running buddy or with your team mates during cool down, we're encouraging everyone to talk.

While our aim is to get the nation talking on 7 February, we know that date may not tie in with your training sessions or competitions. So please use this pack, which is full of tips, ideas and resources, to get the banter flowing throughout February.

No matter how big or small your club or what sport you do, we know that you'll find a way to get involved this Time to Talk Day.

ACTIVITIES AND EVENTS

We've got the ideas and resources to help spark conversations at your club, whether that's in the stands, at the club house or in the changing rooms. You can even customise some of our resources with your sports club's badge to show your backing Time to Talk Day.

- Print our tips cards - leave them on spectator seats
- Special events - from a conversation lead warm up/cool down at a training session to coffee mornings at your club house
- In programme advertisements - download the artwork and personalise it
- Posters at the ground/back of toilet doors - download the artwork

- In programme editorial examples:

Personal story

Try to open with a quote or a paragraph from an athlete, coach or fan who has experienced a mental health problem. An individual writing about their experience and how being able to be open about it has helped them will make a powerful introduction.

The club's perspective

Include a quote or paragraph from someone senior within your club about why they're supporting Time to Change and Time to Talk Day and why challenging stigma is important.

Information about the campaign

Include a short description of what the campaign is, and how people can find out more and get involved themselves.

Signpost to relevant support

Let your athletes, coaches and fans know what resources are available to them and what they can do if they're worried about their mental health.

RESOURCES

You can make the most of your activities and events by downloading and printing our free resources. We have a whole host of materials available to help encourage mental health conversations.

WEBSITE

Thursday 7 February is Time to Talk Day - a day when everyone is encouraged to have a conversations about mental health.

At [Club Name], we know that it benefits all of us to talk about mental health. And when one in four of us experience a mental health problem in any given year it's important that we start the conversation.

This year the focus is on finding the right ingredients for a mental health conversation. Whether that's your trainers and running buddy or during your cool down with your team mates, we're encouraging everyone to talk.

Time to Talk Day is run by Time to Change to help spread the word that anywhere can be the right place to talk about mental health - including at work.

[If you are running an event, you can include the information about it here].

Time to Change is England's biggest programme to challenge mental health stigma and discrimination and is run by the charities Mind and Rethink Mental Illness.

SIGNPOSTS TO SUPPORT

It's great to start the conversation, your support could be a game changer in the attitude of your athletes, coaches and fans towards mental health. This can mean that people currently experiencing mental health problems will need some support as sensitive conversations may bring up difficult things. Please feel free to use the below text or link to our support page online.

If you are experiencing mental health problems or need urgent support, there are lots of places you can go to for help.

Time to Change is focusing on changing how we all think and act about mental health. We're not able to provide individual or emergency support for people in crisis, but there are lots of people who can. They are listed here:

SAMARITANS

Telephone: 116 123 (Free 24 hours a day)

Email: jo@samaritans.org

Website: www.samaritans.org

Provides confidential, non-judgmental emotional support for people experiencing feelings of distress or despair, including those that could lead to suicide. You can phone, email, write a letter or in most cases talk to someone face to face.
