

THE FA'S GUIDE TO THE LAWS OF THE GAME

This new online course is the official first step towards becoming a referee.

It's open to everyone 14+ and over five modules will carefully guide you through the Laws of the Game.

You'll be shown how each Law should be applied during matches, with plenty of opportunity to try what you've learned with several interactive activities. Once complete you'll be ready to move onto the face-to-face training course, which will start back up once government guidance permits.

MODULE 1

Before the Match

This module covers a referee's pre-match responsibilities. You'll learn how to make sure players' kit is safe, how to carry out the coin toss and what a referee needs to take to a match with them.

MODULE 2

Signals and Communication

This section focuses on the signals referees and assistant referees use when making decisions during a match.

MODULE 3

Getting it Right

Using footage from different levels of the game, this module looks at how to manage common offences such as foul challenges, violent conduct, handball, unsporting behaviour, DOGSO offences and advantage.

MODULE 4

Offside

This module also uses video clips, this time to demonstrate what is and isn't offside and how the referee should manage offside offences.

MODULE 5

Managing Starts and Restarts

In this module, you'll see how restarts and set-pieces - including goal kicks, corner kicks, throw-ins, free kicks and penalty kicks, should be managed, what the players must do, and what to do if players don't comply with the Law.

NEXT STEPS

Once you've completed the course you'll be ready to move to the face-to-face referee training. This will be available once government guidance permits.
