WHAT IS ABUSE?

Abuse describes any action that causes harm to a child or young person. Abuse can occur in any setting and be carried out by adults or young people.

Whether experienced over a long period of time, or an isolated incident, abuse can have a significant impact on children's health and well-being.

The signs of child abuse aren't always obvious. But there can be behaviours that children display that might indicate that they are experiencing abuse. Sometimes, physical signs of abuse might be noticeable - however it's important to remember that this is not always the case. Below are some of the signs and indicators that could suggest a child is at risk, or is experiencing abuse.

Not all children experiencing abuse will display these physical and behavioural signs. Some may experience a combination of behaviours that change over time. Other children may try to hide any physical signs that something is happening to them. You might notice some of the signs but feel unsure about whether abuse is going on. It's not your responsibility to investigate abuse. You can get advice and support about the next steps to take to keep the child safe.

If you ever worry that a child or young person is at risk of being harmed or is experiencing abuse - take action by reporting your concerns to Children's Services. Or you can make contact with the County FA Designated Safeguarding Officer. The Designated Safeguarding Officer can support you to make a referral to the appropriate services to keep the child safe - no matter where the abuse is taking place.
