Printing your resources and any information

- Create PowerPoint presentations for people with dyslexia.
- Presentations are improved overall by the features that make them clearer and simpler for people with dyslexia to understand.

You can accomplish both using the following advice:

- Use sans serif fonts that are straightforward and have enough letter spacing.
- Use a font size of at least 18 points. Examples of good sans serif fonts are Segoe UI, Lucida Sans, Franklin Gothic Book, and Calibri.
- Avoid using compressed fonts, typefaces with inconsistent line weights, decorative, script, or display fonts, italicised fonts, or fonts with underlines.
- Limit the amount of lines in each slide and leave plenty of space above and below each line to keep your text easily visible.
- Adhere to the "6 by 7" rule: 6 words each line, 7 lines per slide.
